Letter Postage to Europe

Readers, today by agreement be-Britain and of this country, the ate of postage between the United States and Great Britain is reduced from 5 cents to 2 cents.

From the extreme northwest point in Scotland, a man can now write to another for two cents. Voluntarily the managements of post offices in the two nations have cut three-fifths, 60 per cent, from the amount charged the public for letter service across the Atlantic ocean.

That is because the postoffice is under government ownership.

Do you find anybody in the line of private ownership acting in this strange and unusual way?

Readers, do you not think it would be a good thing to keep your minds fixed upon the questions of government and of municipal ownership of national properties, of public monopolies and necessities?

Could there be a greater object lesson than this voluntary and enormous reduction of 60 per cent in the cost of trans-Atlantic mail charge, under government ownership, and the constant increase of tween the governments of Great all commodities and charges under ticket to the carnival. private ownership?

Think about it; it is worth your thought .- New York Journal.
